PROFILE

Being furloughed gave me the chance to learn. I spent this time making all manner of things, starting with lots of carpentry projects and then moving on to web development. I started with Html, CSS and JavaScript, learning as much as I could just from free resources online. Then I took the course "The complete web developer: Zero to Mastery" and that is where my newfound love for development began. Since then, I have been tirelessly learning all I can, focusing on JavaScript and React. I may not be the most experienced developer out there but my drive to better myself and my other skills gained in the catering sector mean I will work the hardest for this opportunity.
